Al-Sadr's Militia on Offensive

Iraq cease-fire in doubt as cleric's supporters join fight

BAGHDAD | Iraq's leaders faced their gravest challenge in months Tuesday as Shiite militiamen loyal to anti-American cleric Muqtada al-Sadr battled for control of the southern oil capital, fought U.S. and Iraqi troops in Baghdad and unleashed rockets on the Green Zone.

Armed Mahdi Army militiamen appeared on some Baghdad streets for the first time in more than six months, as al-Sadr's followers announced a nationwide campaign of strikes and demonstrations to protest a government crackdown on their movement. U.S. and Iraqi troops backed by helicopters fought Shiite militiamen in Baghdad's Sadr City after the local office of Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki's Dawa Party came under attack.

The burgeoning crisis has major implications for the U.S. An escalation could unravel the cease-fire al-Sadr proclaimed last August. A resumption of fighting by his militia could kill more U.S. soldiers and threaten the security gains Washington has hailed as a sign that Iraq is on the road to recovery. (AP)

Pagans and druids, mark your calendars. An Australian entrepreneur hopes to open a Stonehenge replica by the Dec. 21 solstice, just in time for New Age revelers. "I'm doing it because I can," said Ross Smith, who plans to build the monument on his property in Western Australia. The $1.26 million project, to be called the Henge, will include 101 granite stones arranged in an inner and an outer circle, and a central altar, and will span 110 feet. Unlike the original, guests will be encouraged to touch and play around the new monument, which will also have an interpretive center and a children's playground. (AP)

A Jackson County, Ark., man remained in jail Monday after he drove two cars into a post office. Sheriff Gary Tribble said Glenn Irvin Sparling, 65, drove one vehicle into the post office on Sunday, then fled the scene. The sheriff told a television station that the car stopped running. So, Sparling went home and got another vehicle, a red antique sports car, and started driving back to the post office. A deputy spotted him and gave chase; the pursuit ended when Sparling ran the second car into the post office building. The sheriff said Sparling had a history of damaging postal buildings. (AP)

It is neither cooked nor raw — it's plastinated, a process that dehydrates the creature and replaces its fluids with plastic resin, to produce an insanely disturbing object kids and tourists are sure to love. He Needed a Place To Keep His Mind

Police have charged a Plainfield, Conn., man with larceny for allegedly stealing a copper gutter from a church during Easter services. Paul Bissonnette is accused of removing about 30 feet of the gutter as nearly 200 parishioners attended an Easter vigil service at All Hallows Church. Authorities say Bis-sonnette quickly folded up the gutter and walked away with it. A police dog tracked the 44-year-old to his house, where he was arrested and charged with sixth-degree larceny and third-degree criminal mischief. (AP)

Pentagon Reveals Errant Shipment

Military accidentally sent ballistic missile parts to Taiwan in '06

WASHINGTON | The accidental shipment of electrical fuses for an intercontinental ballistic missile to Taiwan raised concerns Tuesday for U.S.-China relations and triggered a broad investigation into the security of Pentagon weapons.

China vehemently opposes U.S. arms sales to Taiwan. Four of the cone-shaped fuses were shipped to Taiwanese officials in fall 2006 instead of the helicopter batteries they had ordered.

DELICATE ISSUE

→ Taiwan, which split from China amid civil war in 1949, is the most sensitive issue in U.S.-China relations. Chinese officials repeatedly complained about U.S. arms sales to Taiwan during meetings with Defense Secretary Robert Gates in Beijing last fall. The U.S. insists it provides only weapons that would allow Taiwan to defend itself.

Despite quarterly checks of the inventory, defense officials said they never knew the fuses were gone. Only after months of discussions with Taiwan over the missing batteries did the Pentagon finally realize the gravity of what had happened.

Once the error was discovered, the military quickly recovered the four fuses. How it happened, and whether the incident constitutes a violation of any treaty or agreement governing sales of missile technology, were lingering questions.

At a hastily called news conference Tuesday, Ryan Henry, the No. 2 policy official in Defense Secretary Robert Gates' office, said President Bush and Chinese leaders were informed of the mistake — an error Henry called intolerable.

"I can not emphasize forcefully enough how strong the secretary feels about this matter and how disconcerting it is to him," Henry told reporters. LOLITA C. BALDOR (AP)

Part of Antarctic Ice Shelf Collapses

Scientist says global warming is to blame for the rapid melting

WASHINGTON | A chunk of Antarctic ice about seven times the size of Manhattan suddenly collapsed, putting an even greater portion of glacial ice at risk, scientists said Tuesday.

Satellite images show the runaway disintegration of a 160-square-mile chunk in western Antarctica that started Feb. 28. It was the edge of the Wilkins ice shelf and has been there for hundreds of years or maybe 1,500 years.

This is the result of global warming, said British Antarctic Survey scientist David Vaughan.

Because scientists noticed satellite images within hours, they diverted satellite cameras and even flew an airplane over the collapse for rare pictures and video.

"It's an event we don't get to see very often," said Ted Scambos, lead scientist at the National Snow and Ice Data Center in Boulder, Colo. "The cracks fill with water and slice off and topple. ... That gets to be a runaway situation."

While icebergs naturally break away from the mainland, collapses like this are unusual but have happened more frequently in recent decades, Vaughan said. The collapse is similar to what happens to hardened glass when it is smashed with a hammer, he said.

The rest of the Wilkins ice shelf, which is about the size of Connecticut, is holding on by a narrow beam of thin ice. Scientists worry that it, too, may collapse.

Vaughan had predicted the Wilkins shelf would collapse about 15 years from now. The part that recently gave way makes up about 4 percent of the overall shelf, but it's an important part that can trigger further collapse. SETH BORENSTEIN (AP)

Passenger Rights Law Overturned

Federal court says N.Y. cannot force airlines to take care of fliers

NEW YORK | A federal appeals court Tuesday struck down a state law requiring airlines to provide food, water, clean toilets and fresh air to passengers stuck in delayed planes, saying the measure was well-intentioned but stepped on federal authority.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said New York's law — the first of its kind in the country — interferes with federal law governing the price, route or service of an air carrier.

The law was passed after thousands of passengers were stranded aboard airplanes for up to 10 hours on several JetBlue Airways flights JetBlue Airways passengers wait for flights at New York's Kennedy Airport on Feb. 15, 2007. New York passed a passenger rights bill after the JetBlue delays.

at Kennedy International Airport on Valentine's Day last year. They complained they were deprived of food and water and that toilets overflowed. A month later, hundreds more passengers of other airlines were stranded aboard planes at JFK after a daylong ice storm.

The court said that while the goals of the law were "laudable" and the circumstances prompting its adoption "deplorable," only the federal government has the authority to pass such regulations.

Assemblyman Michael Gianaris, the prime sponsor of the New York Airline Passenger Bill of Rights, said in a statement that the ruling "is a disappointment to anyone who has suffered at the hands of airlines that care more about profits than their customers."

"This is far from over," the Democrat said. Options for proponents of the law include an appeal, a new law or putting pressure on the federal government to create similar rules for long-delayed flights.

Detroit Mayor Pleads Not Guilty In Affair Scandal

DETROIT | Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick and his former top aide pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges they lied under oath about having an affair. The mayor and former Chief of Staff Christine Beatty appeared for separate hearings in the scandal that is threatening to prematurely end Kilpatrick's second term.

District Court Magistrate Steve Lockhart entered not-guilty pleas for each of them on charges of perjury, conspiracy, obstruction of justice and misconduct in office. Both were released on personal bonds.

The two are accused of lying under oath about an affair and their roles in the firing of a top police official. Attorneys for Kilpatrick and Beatty have said their clients will be exonerated. (AP)

"Investor Opportunities Skyrocket"

"Foreclosures up 574% in Washington, DC Last Year"

Invest in your future with Trump University, then invest smart in foreclosures.

Big-money deals in today's real estate market are ripe for the picking. While you may have read that the market is down, the current explosion in real estate foreclosures actually presents a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to make high-dollar profits on quick, low-cost deals.

U.S. foreclosures soared 94% in 2007!* This booming segment of the real estate market has every investor perking up... and so should you. With the right teacher, the right knowledge, and the right strategies, anyone can make the kind of real estate deals you only see on television.

Whether you're a seasoned real estate investor or brand new to the game and looking to secure your financial future off a couple of deals... real estate foreclosures are the new "it" investment. But like all good things, this window into big-time wealth won't be open forever. So if you're ready to make your move, my foreclosure investing system gives you the tools and resources to make enough money — in just one deal — to change your financial future.

"I'm going to give you 2 hours of access to one of my amazing instructors AND priceless information... all for FREE."

5 strategies you'll learn:

1. How to Find Foreclosure Opportunities in Your Geographic Area: Take advantage of the hot investing opportunities in your neighborhood before anyone else does.

2. How to Offer Distressed Homeowners a Way Out: Learn how to be a hero to homeowners who can't afford their adjustable rate mortgage payment.

3. Financing: How to benefit from specific sources of seed capital and put together your own creative financing deals.

4. The Phases of Foreclosure — Following the Foreclosure Clock: When to make a move and how to capitalize at every stage of the process.

5. What to Do Once You Have the Property: Do you rent, renovate, or sell immediately? Learn what's best for your specific situation.

Not just anyone can be one of my instructors.

It takes a superior level of real-world experience to have a chance to speak in front of Trump University students. My instructors have to practice what they preach. And through their experience, they're armed with the knowledge to teach you the strategies to be successful. When you come to my foreclosure orientation, you can be certain to hear from men and women who are currently making money investing in real estate and want to teach you how you can too.

Learning to ride the recent tidal wave of real estate foreclosures has never been FASTER or EASIER... UNTIL NOW.

Right now, there are literally thousands of undervalued properties — many in your area — ready to be purchased far below market value and sold high. In nearly all my years of detecting the most lucrative investment trends, I'd be hard-pressed to find a hotter investment opportunity than foreclosures right now.

Why is the profit potential so great?

1. Foreclosure properties are often sold way below market value. That means you can buy low and sell high.

2. Golden opportunity for investors. This is a prime market for new investors to buy and sell quickly. Experienced investors can buy these deeply discounted properties and hold them for an enormous payday down the road.

3. High-quality property. You'd be shocked to see some of the most beautiful houses available (some may even be in your neighborhood) are foreclosures.

4. U.S. foreclosures rose 94% in 2007, and I am confident they will keep rising. This high-volume trend means you won't be searching for available deals. You just need to know where to look for the best ones.

The current rise in foreclosures is an incredible opportunity for you to make legendary real estate deals. It's time to achieve the privileged life you've always dreamed about... not years from now, but just a few short months from now.

Learn everything you need to get started on your path to wealth at my foreclosure orientation. Register now at TrumpUniversityDC.com or call 888-TRUMP-04 today. (87867)

Disaster Cover-Ups Alleged

Critics say engineering group ignored design flaws in structures

NEW ORLEANS | The professional organization for engineers who build the nation's roads, dams and bridges has been accused by fellow engineers of covering up catastrophic design flaws while investigating national disasters.

After the 2001 attack on the World Trade Center and the levee failures caused by Hurricane Katrina in 2005, the federal government paid the American Society of Civil Engineers to investigate what went wrong.

Critics now accuse the group of covering up engineering mistakes, downplaying the need to alter building standards, and using the investigations to protect engineers and government agencies from lawsuits.

Similar accusations arose after both disasters, but the most recent allegations have pressured the organization to convene an independent panel to investigate.

The panel is expected to issue a report by the end of April and may recommend the society stop taking money from government agencies for disaster investigations.

In the World Trade Center case, critics contend the engineering society wrongly concluded skyscrapers cannot withstand getting hit by airplanes. In the hurricane investigation, it was accused of suggesting that the power of the storm was as big a problem as the poorly designed levees.

The group has about 140,000 members. CAIN BURDEAU (AP)

U.S. Ship Fires at Egyptians in Suez

Egyptians claim man was killed by shots; Navy denies casualty

SUEZ, EGYPT | Dozens of mourners buried an Egyptian man Tuesday who they said was killed by shots fired from an American cargo ship contracted to the U.S. Navy as it passed through the Suez Canal.

U.S. officials said American military guards aboard the ship fired only warning shots toward approaching motorboats Monday night and said they had received no report of anyone's being killed.

The incident occurred when the merchant ship Global Patriot entered the Suez Canal and was approached by small motorboats selling goods, according to both Egyptian and U.S. reports.

The Navy has been leery of small boats getting near its warships since al-Qaeda suicide attackers rammed an explosives-packed motorboat into the USS Cole off Yemen, killing 17 sailors in 2000.

In Monday's incident, the boats "were hailed and warned by a native Arabic speaker using a bullhorn to warn them to turn away. A warning flare was then fired," the U.S. Embassy in Cairo said in a statement. "One small boat continued to approach the ship and received two sets of warning shots. ... All shots were accounted for as they entered the water."

The Navy said that it was investigating the case. NASSER NASSER (AP)

Sarkozy Hints at Olympic Boycott

PARIS | French President Nicolas Sarkozy suggested Tuesday that a boycott of the opening ceremony of the Beijing Olympics was a possibility. Sarkozy is the first world leader to raise the prospect of punishing China for its crackdown in Tibet.

The U.S., Britain and Germany all condemned China for using force against Tibetan protesters but stopped short of threatening to boycott the games or the Aug. 8 opening ceremony.

Sarkozy, who had faced rising criticism in France for his relative silence on the issue, couched his comments cautiously: He made it clear that skipping the ceremony was one of several possible French responses to violence in Tibet.

"Our Chinese friends must understand the worldwide concern that there is about the question of Tibet, and I will adapt my response to the evolutions in the situation that will come, I hope, as rapidly as possible," he said.

When asked whether he supported a boycott, Sarkozy said he could "not close the door to any possibility." Sarkozy's aides said he was talking only about the opening ceremony. (AP)

Pakistan to Rethink Policy

Former PM Sharif says new leaders will revisit counterterrorism plans

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | A key figure in Pakistan's new government told two top U.S. envoys on Tuesday there needs to be a change in President Pervez Musharraf's policy of using the power of the army against Islamic militants.

The call came as a new prime minister, Yousaf Raza Gilani, took office, closing the book on eight years of military rule.

President Bush phoned Gilani

after his swearing-in and invited him to Washington at his convenience. Gilani's office said the new premier vowed Pakistan would "continue to fight terrorism."

But it was clear Pakistan's rulers are rethinking counterterrorism strategy, amid concern that the use of force against al-Qaeda and Taliban provoked a backlash.

Former Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif said he told Deputy Secretary of State John Negroponte and Assistant Secretary of State for South Asia Richard Boucher Tuesday that there was "no longer a one-man show in Pakistan" and that the new parliament would decide after exhaustive debate how Pakistan should approach Islamic extremism.

He lashed out at Musharraf's U.S.-backed policies, saying Pakistan must not be sacrificed to protect other countries.

"It is unacceptable that while giving peace to the world we make our own country a killing field," he said. MATTHEW PENNINGTON (AP)

Comoros Seizes Rebel-Held Island

Fighting continues as government hunts for renegade colonel

ANJOUAN, COMOROS | The Comoros government seized control of the capital of a rebel-held island off the southeast coast of Africa, but sporadic fighting persisted as troops flushed out pockets of resistance and searched for the renegade colonel who is seeking the island's independence.

Explosions and gunfire started before dawn as hundreds of troops backed by the African Union moved in. There was no official word on casualties, but an Associated Press reporter saw an elderly man being carried after he apparently was hit in the hip with a stray bullet. Two African Union soldiers also appeared to have minor injuries.

Renegade Col. Mohamed Bacar, who seized power in Anjouan in 2001 and stayed in power after an illegal election last year, has drawn strident warnings from the government and the African Union. Dosara said troops were searching for Bacar, who has said he is seeking the island's independence.

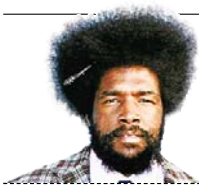

One Comoros officer said government forces arrested three "high-ranking officers" loyal to Bacar.

→ Turbulent history:

The Comoros — an archipelago of three main islands with a population of about 750,000 — has experienced a series of coups and political upheavals since gaining independence from France in 1975.

Inside the capital, gunshots rang out into the afternoon, though crowds were able to walk through the streets. JEROME DELAY (AP)

ECO-FRIENDLY HIP-HOP: The Roots will headline the April 20 D.C. Earth Day festival, one of eight U.S. festivals planned for the day. Other free events will be staged at parks in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Miami and San Francisco. The concert will be held on the National Mall.

Va. Tech Families Divided

Relatives of shooting victims undecided on $100K settlement plan

RICHMOND, VA. | Those close to the victims of the Virginia Tech mass shootings offered mixed reactions Tuesday to a proposed multimillion-dollar state settlement and whether it would properly honor their loved ones.

Families of the victims have until Monday to say whether they'll accept the settlement, which would give $100,000 to representatives of each of the 32 killed and ensures that families will have the chance to talk to the governor and university officials about the shootings.

Under the proposal, $800,000 would be available to injured victims.

DISCLOSURE CONFUSION
The U.S. Department of Education has proposed new mental-health information release regulations:

→ Ada Meloy, general counsel for the American Council on Education, said: "The changes that are proposed in the regulations provide additional assurance that colleges and universities acting in good faith can disclose information from education records in health and safety emergency situations to parents and to others who have a reason to need to know."

April 16, said that while he considers the proposal a very reasonable offer, he is concerned about how the money would be split among the survivors. The proposal states only that the money would be distributed "based on a matrix acceptable to the commonwealth, with a maximum payment of $100,000 to any individual."

"I'm inclined to believe this will not be settled by April 15th," O'Dell said. "I think there are too many question marks in the proposed offer."

Twenty-two families have filed notice with the state that they may sue. They have until April 16 to file. Families of all deceased victims and the survivors would be eligible for a payout under the settlement.

In exchange for accepting the proposal, family members would give up the right to sue the state government, Virginia Tech, the town of Blacksburg — where Virginia Tech is located — Montgomery County and the New River Valley Community Services Board, which provides mental-health services in the area.

Substance Discovered in D.C. Home

WASHINGTON | District of Columbia authorities say they will analyze a substance recovered from a Northwest Washington home where a dead man was found.

D.C. police spokesman Junis Fletcher says an elderly white male was found dead, and the suspicious substance was recovered from a container. He says the substance will be tested. Thirteen people, including 11 fire personnel, were taken to hospitals as a precaution after the material was found. (AP)

Home Prices Continue To Plunge in U.S. Cities

Formerly hot markets of Las Vegas, Miami see biggest decline

NEW YORK | Home prices in many cities continued to plunge by record levels in January as sellers cut their asking bids and rising foreclosures took their toll, new data showed Tuesday.

While the spring selling season usually gives the market a bounce, some analysts say any notable improvement may not come until well into the summer. U.S. home prices fell 10.7 percent in January, and the Standard & Poor's/Case-Shiller home price index of 20 cities saw the steepest decline in the index's two-decade history.

Worst-hit were Las Vegas and Miami, both reporting 19.3 percent drops, as the regions are still paying the price for rampant speculation and overbuilding during the boom years. Those cities and 14 others, including Phoenix and Detroit, posted record lows.

"I wouldn't be looking for a pattern of improvement until April, May or June," said Brian Bethune, Global Insight's chief U.S. economist. Only Charlotte, N.C., squeaked by as a gainer in the index, with a 1.8 percent rise in January compared to a year earlier. VINNEE TONG (AP)

LONG RUNS: Thanks to 25 percent more snow than average, Aspen Highlands in Colorado will stay open until April 27, making it the fourth area to announce an extended season this year.

Crack an Egg on Your Head

Let the confetti drip down at San Antonio's Fiesta in late April

FESTIVALS | In late April, tiny pastel bits of a giant San Antonio party show up everywhere: trickling from your hair, embedded in the carpet under your desk, stuck to your furniture. The confetti comes from an egg that was cracked over your head by a mischievous friend or relative, and it's inescapable.

Not that anyone is really trying to escape. Cacarones, as the eggs are called, have become part of San Antonio's 117-year-old city-wide party called Fiesta.

For 10 days starting April 18, this city will host parades, open-air concerts and festivals that return this fast-growing big city to its roots as a small town that has always been equal parts Texan and Mexican. (Cascarones — pronounced kash-ROHN-es — were first a Mexican Easter tradition but have been adopted by Fiesta-goers.)

Fiesta includes 100 events that will rack up an attendance count of roughly 3 million, though many attendees will be counted at more than one event, said Fiesta Commission spokeswoman Anne Keever Cannon. All the events are organized by nonprofits, many as fundraisers to support scholarships or charitable causes.

Lots of the events — including the parades, a carnival and several music and food festivals held downtown — are free.

While about one-fifth of the people who attend a Fiesta event come from out of town, most Fiesta-goers are locals, and many have been watching parades or attending events for decades. Families tend to crowd the same street corners to watch parades year after year.

"We have people who have been coming to Fiesta events literally for generations," said Cannon.

Fiesta diehards also like to exchange pins or medals shaped like military honors, either handmade or purchased by families for the celebration.

"They run up to any person who wears a crown or wears a sash and says 'I'll give you one if you give me one of yours,'" said Cannon, who has traced the tradition back 60 years.

Sox Win Opener in Dramatic Fashion

Champs start defense of title by beating the A's in extra innings

BASEBALL | Daisuke Matsuzaka got the Tokyo Dome fans revved up, and Manny Ramirez struck the winning pose.

In the earliest major league opener, the Boston Red Sox got off to a winning start in their World Series title defense.

Ramirez hit his second two-run double in the 10th inning — admiring his drive from the batter's box, thinking it was a three-run homer — and Red Sox beat the Oakland Athletics 6-5 in Tokyo on Tuesday night.

"Ultimately, it was a great ballgame," Matsuzaka said through Manny Ramirez celebrates his second two-run double, which put the Red Sox up by two in the 10th inning. Boston gave up one run in the bottom of the inning and won 6-5.

MANNY BEING MANNY
In the first game of the year, Manny Ramirez drove in four runs on two hits:

a translator. "I hope people got a chance to enjoy it live."

A crowd of 44,628, including fans from Boston, cheered at the Tokyo Dome, which hosted baseball's opener for the third time in nine years. It was 6:10 a.m. back in Boston when the season began, and the organizers tried to make it feel like Fenway Park by playing "Sweet Caroline" after the last out.

Ramirez, starting the final guaranteed season of his eight-year contract, hit a game-tying, two-run double in the sixth inning, and rookie Brandon Moss hit an RBI single that gave Boston a 3-2 lead and chased Oakland starter Joe Blanton.

Matsuzaka left after five wild innings and 95 pitches, and Jack Hannahan's two-run homer off Kyle Snyder put Oakland ahead 4-3 lead in the sixth. Moss, playing because J.D. Drew hurt his back in batting practice, hit a solo homer in the ninth off Huston Street (0-1).

Then, in the 10th, Julio Lugo reached on an infield single leading off, Dustin Pedroia sacrificed and David Ortiz was intentionally walked with two outs.

Ramirez hit a drive to deep center and was sure it would be a home run. It wasn't.

"Maybe if I used my American bat that ball maybe would have gone," he said. "I thought I hit it good." HOWARD ULMAN (AP)

GOP Rep. Davis Questions Report Accusing Clemens

BASEBALL | The top Republican on the congressional committee that investigated whether Roger Clemens used performance-enhancing drugs released a report Tuesday questioning the Democratic majority's conclusion that the seven-time Cy Young Award winner might have lied in his testimony before the panel last month.

Davis

The 109-page report, obtained by The Associated Press, contains details Rep. Tom Davis believes could challenge the credibility of Brian McNamee, the personal trainer who testified under oath he injected Clemens with steroids and human growth hormone from 1998-01.

"Did Roger Clemens lie to us?" Davis said in a release accompanying the report. "Some of the evidence seems to say he did; other information suggests he told the truth."

Burres Makes His Case for a Job

Pitcher is battling with Albers for the final spot in the rotation

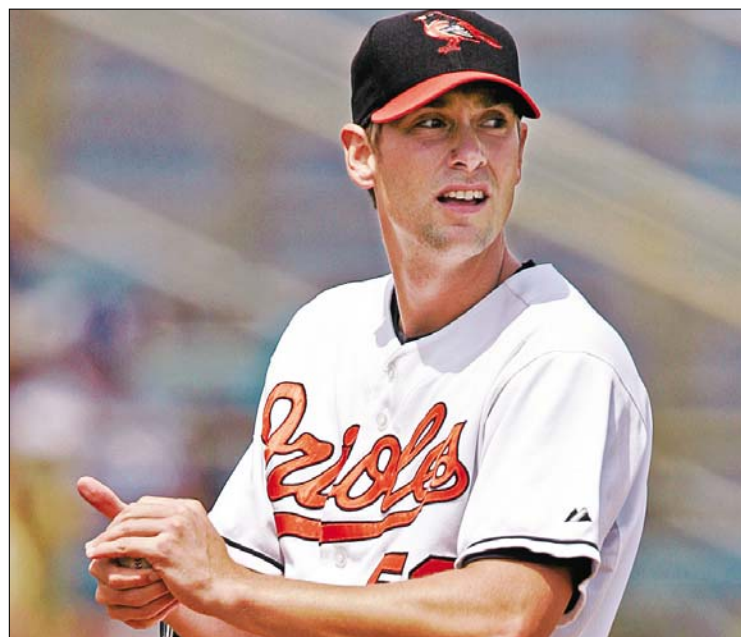

ORIOLES | Locked in a two-man race to be the Baltimore Orioles' fifth starter, Brian Burres picked an opportune time for his most effective outing this spring.

Burres allowed six singles in 5 1/3 scoreless innings, and the Orioles broke a six-game losing streak with an 8-1 victory over the Marlins.

"The timing was good for him to do that," said Baltimore manager Dave Trembley, who earlier in the day announced that Burres and right-hander Matt Albers were the finalists to be the fifth starter. "We got 75 pitches out of him, [and] his tempo was good."

The left-hander started in place of right-hander Jon Lester, who was scratched from his scheduled outing and sent outright to Triple-A Norfolk on Tuesday morning.

Burres has been getting 1-on-1 instruction from Mike Flanagan, a former Cy Young Award winner who is the Orioles' executive vice president of baseball operations, Brian Burres threw 5 1/3 scoreless innings in a win over the Marlins on Tuesday.

Report: Canseco Accuses A-Rod In His New Book

BASEBALL | Jose Canseco says in his new book that he introduced Alex Rodriguez to a steroids distributor and that A-Rod pursued Canseco's wife, according to the Web site of freelance writer Joe Lavin.

Lavin says on the Web site that he obtained the book, "Vindicated: Big Names, Big Liars, and the Battle to Save Baseball," on Monday from a bookstore in Cambridge, Mass. The book is due to be released April 1.

Lavin writes Canseco's book discusses A-Rod, Roger Clemens and Magglio Ordonez. Lavin also says "Canseco claims that A-Rod was trying to sleep with Canseco's wife."

"I really, absolutely, have no reaction," Rodriguez said Tuesday when asked about the claim relating to the steroids distributor. As far as the allegation regarding Canseco's wife, Rodriguez responded: "I don't know how to answer that." (AP)

Calipari Calls Foul on Critics

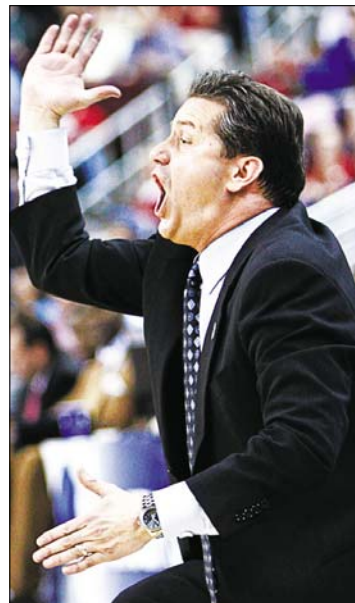

Memphis coach is sick of talking about team's free-throw shooting

NCAA TOURNEY | The Memphis Tigers have no problems with high-flying dunks. They can knock down jumpers from anywhere on the floor, and most of the players are 3-point threats. Put them at the free-throw line, however, and something happens. The unguarded shot turns out to be the most difficult indeed.

Not that coach John Calipari is worried. That 15-of-32 performance in his Tigers' 77-74 second-round win over Mississippi State? Just a bad game.

Listen to him Monday, though, and it's clear he's tired of critics pointing at his Tigers' free-throw struggles as the fatal flaw that will stop the top-seeded team in the NCAA South Regional.

"It's almost to the point of, 'Do you really even know what my team does well or doesn't do well?' Or is it because you don't know? You just say, 'It's free-throw shooting. That's all I'm going to talk about,'" said Calipari, whose Tigers (35-1) play No. 5 seed Michigan State (27-8) on Friday in the regional semifinal.

Calipari would rather discuss the 11 shots his Tigers blocked or their five turnovers against a Mississippi State defense that ranked second in the country in field goal percentage defense. Memphis is in rare company with UCLA as the only teams to reach the Sweet 16 in each of the last three years.

"But everybody, all they want to talk about is our free-throw shooting," Calipari said. "I don't know why. I come back to the conclusion that maybe they haven't seen our team play, nor do they really know, and the easy thing to talk about off the stat sheet is our free throws. Maybe I'm wrong, though."

One Who Got Pushed Away

Alexander wasn't well recruited, but he put W.Va. in the Sweet 16

NCAA TOURNEY | Joe Alexander sat in the West Virginia locker room surrounded by dozens of reporters and boxes of pizza. The 6-foot-8 forward had just led his team to a win over Duke in the second round of the NCAA tournament, and someone asked the Maryland native how he got away from his neighboring school.

"Got away?" responded Alexander, who scored 22 points in 40 minutes against Duke and has unquestionably been one of the top stars of this year's tourney. "They didn't even know I existed. ... I sent the tapes, but they told me, 'Sorry, you're not our kind of player.' So, I didn't really get away. I was kind of pushed — or shoved."

Alexander is brutally honest. His voicemail says something along the lines of "You can leave a message, but I won't check it for about a month," and after beating Duke, he said that "the top six or seven teams [in the Big East] are definitely right on par with Duke." And he makes no attempt to hide the fact that he was disappointed not to be recruited by Maryland.

Coming out of high school, he wasn't heavily recruited at all. He went to Hargrave Military Academy for an extra year of development, was recruited by a handful of mid-Majors and decided instead to go to West Virginia. Over three years, he has gradually improved, going from 1.3 points per game as a freshman to 10.3 last year, to 16.8 this season, when he was named first team all-Big East.

Last year, he helped West Virginia win the NIT. On Thursday, he will lead the Mountaineers against Xavier in the Sweet 16.

"The biggest turning point was [coach Bob] Huggins' coming here," he said of his development as a player. "But, before that, I've always been athletic, I've always been willing to work hard, and I've always had fundamental offensive and defensive skills — I've thought."

Again with the honesty.

Butler Brings Toughness on the Road

Wizards start trip out West with their forward back and playing well

WIZARDS | You must be relentless to win on the road. And no one epitomizes that characteristic on the Wizards like Caron Butler.

While Gilbert Arenas is the team's star and Antawn Jamison is its conscience, Butler is its heart.

The forward's return from a 16-game absence due to a hip injury has rejuvenated a Wizards squad that has been getting by on grit all season. Washington (36-33) had won five of its last six games heading into last night's contest at Portland. The wins have moved them into fifth place in the East.

"[Butler] gives so much — to have a double-double and the assists and the steals — to make an impact on the game like he did the other night with the wrist that's really in a bad way, means a lot to us," said Wizards coach Eddie Jordan, who said he knew Butler was ready to return in mid-March when he started seeing his trademark "mean look" during practice scrimmages.

Butler's hip has recovered, but he chipped a bone in his wrist in the March 13 win over Cleveland. The man they call "Tough Juice" has been playing through the pain and will be a big factor on this crucial trip, on which Washington starts out with three teams — Portland, Seattle and Sacramento — hovering at .500 or below before traveling to play the Lakers and then Utah.

With Caron Butler back in the lineup, the Wizards have won five of their last six.

A different Arenas?

With all the political scandals shifting to New York this month, the biggest soap opera in D.C. has become if whether Arenas will return to the lineup.

But once that's settled, a larger question may be what his on-court attitude will be. If Arenas is to be believed, he'll spend his time on the perimeter looking to set up teammates instead of attacking.

Arenas said he rarely takes the ball to the basket in practice. While Arenas doesn't fly around like Antonio Daniels, the Wizards are used to Arenas' being able to drive to create opportunities. When he returned from his first surgery at the beginning of the season, Arenas' shot distribution wasn't noticeably different, though he did put up fewer 3's (6.5) and field goal attempts (17.6) than he did the last two years. ERIC BRANDNER

Cars

The 135i is a little shorter and narrower than the 3-series BMW coupe, but not by much. In other words, it's basically the same car squeezed into a smaller body.

No Alibi For Ugly 1-Series

The poor man's BMW misses the mark in sexiness and value

NOT HOT | Let's begin with a verity, an undeniable truth that is evident from three feet away or from the cold distance of outer space: The new 1-series BMW is ugly. Seriously ugly. Ugly with X-wings locked in attack formation. I know an ugly car when one blows past me at 100 mph.

But I'm not so superficial that I would write off the 1-series with some subjective rant about styling. Oh, no. I have other reasons to torpedo this car.

I've always been an advocate of small, premium cars, such as the Audi A3, the Volvo C30 and the Mini Cooper S. And, over the years, as the 3-series has grown into the fully rigged, gold-plated showboat it is, I have longed for a smaller, lighter, simpler BMW, something along the lines of the old 2002 or even the 318ti that sold in the U.S. from 1995 to 1999.

Who wants a poor man's BMW? A poor man, that's who. I'd like a BMW a foot shorter than a 3-series, half a ton lighter and $10,000 cheaper. I'd like it to have a four-cylinder, high-pressure turbo engine and a six-speed gearbox, and I'd like the whole thing dipped, Achilles-style, in a track-ready minimalism. And the new 1-series isn't it.

Worse yet, the 1-series really isn't much of a value proposition. Our test car priced out at $42,325, which is only $4,525 less than an identically optioned, better equipped and infinitely more attractive 335i Coupe.

I suppose there are other cost-of-ownership issues, but I think you would have to be slightly mad to choose the 1-series over the otter-sleek and beautiful 3-series. Perhaps only if you can't reach the pedals in the bigger car.

My husband and I now have two small dogs, instead of our usual one, and we're getting started in dog competitions. What smallish SUV or crossover vehicle would you recommend that can take two side-by-side smallish dog crates? One of the best dog wagons is the Subaru Forester. Good luck in the competitions.

I need a new car. Should I lease a car for two to three years to wait for new technology to arrive? It seems like lots is coming in the future but not quite here yet. New technology arrives daily. But since you intend to change out cars in three years or less, leasing makes sense. You are buying access to transportation more than you are a car, per se. Keep in mind that the same common sense rules apply to leasing that apply to buying. Make sure you can afford what you lease.

The same common sense rules apply to leasing that apply to buying.

I don't understand how you can recommend Mercedes E-Class cars when year after year their owners tell Consumer Reports how frequently they need repair, earning them the "unreliable" black circle.

Very easily. Especially the Mercedes-Benz E320 Bluetec diesel, which I absolutely love. Some consumers view CR as their buyers' bible. I never have. I probably never will. And my empirical experience is that such seeming apostasy has stood me well in the automotive marketplace. CR buyers love Honda and Toyota. God bless 'em.

Tracey Ullman comes back as a critic on 'State of the Union'

SATIRE | Tracey Ullman prefers pathetic.

"I don't want to be the pretty girl. I just want to dress up and look terrible on TV," Ullman says of the quirky characters she plays on "Tracey Ullman's State of the Union," her new sketch-comedy series on Showtime. "You know, I've always wanted to be the ugly stepsister or the person with the problem."

Styled as a day in the life of America, "State of the Union" takes Ullman from coast to coast in a flurry of fast-flying impersonations.

"The show's title gives me an excuse to take the nation's pulse," says the British-born actress, who became a U.S. citizen in 2006 after living here for more than two decades.

On the "State of the Union" premiere (10 p.m., Sunday), Ullman's cast of characters includes a weary illegal-immigrant worker in Manhattan, political pundit Arianna Huffington, former "Sopranos" star Tony Sirico and Lindsay Lohan's mom.

Upcoming episodes include Ullman's takes on Helen Mirren, Cameron Diaz and Renee Zellweger.

But Ullman has a special

PRETTY AIN'T FUNNY: Ullman doesn't sugar-coat her act — she knows brash, pathetic and real are what get laughs, and she's unafraid to appear as all three.

fondness for a character named Gretchen Pincus, a tacky, teary-eyed, low-rent lady who meets her convict husbands on the Web site deathrowpenpals.com.

"To wear cheap clothes, put in some horrible front teeth with a big gap, smoke 10 cigarettes and, like, just sob — that's heaven on a stick for me," Ullman says.

Ullman broke into U.S. television in 1987 with the award-winning series, "The Tracey Ullman Show," on the then-fledgling Fox network. In the '90s, she starred in specials on HBO, plus the acclaimed sketch-comedy series "Tracey Takes On." She returned to HBO with the 2003 special "Tracey Ullman in the Trailer Tales."

With the move to Showtime, Ullman returns to her unique brand of sociopolitical commentary.

"We've always had a great tradition of political satire in England," says Ullman, who has retained her British citizenship. "Now there's so much more satire in America than when I first moved here."

"I like that Americans can laugh at themselves more. ... And now I want to join in, now that you've got problems," she jokes, referring to the state of the union's economy. "Now, as an American citizen, I can join the discussion and I won't end up in Guantanamo Bay."

A Painless Crossover

Zoey Deschanel releases an album—and it isn't bad at all

MUSIC | When last we saw Zoey Deschanel sing, she was Will Ferrell's reluctant duet partner in the 2003 movie "Elf." She's been singing off-screen, though, and writing songs and she's good enough at it to have enlisted indie-savant M. Ward as a musical partner. Together, they are She & Him, a duo comfortably ensconced in the classic sound of '60s pop on their debut, "Volume One."

Featuring 10 originals and three covers (including an unlisted version of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot"), the album is a showcase for Deschanel's pipes and Ward's clever musical arrangements. Her voice isn't classically pretty, and she sometimes sounds a mite self-conscious — that's no surprise, given that writing songs was a private indulgence she probably never would have made public without urging from Ward.

Yet she sings with expressive warmth, layering her voice in sweet harmonies on "Sweet Darlin'" and letting it soar just a bit on "This is Not a Test." The two duet on the Beatles' "I Should Have Known Better," turning the song into a vintage beach-country tune with soft percussion.

Not the least among the album's charms is its title: "Volume One" implies there will be a volume two. ERIC R. DANTON

Indie darling Zoey Deschanel shows off her vocal chops in "She & Him."

NOT A GOOD SUBSTITUTE FOR SPRING BREAK: Fox plans to resurrect "Prison Break" for another season, which begs the question: How long can it possibly take these guys to escape? Should the show be renamed "Prison Stay"?

Back in the USSR

‘Peter and the Wolf’ is dark, gloomy and not to be missed

RUSSIA | “Peter and the Wolf” recently won an Academy Award for best animated short. The remarkable half-hour, stop-motion adaptation of Sergei Prokofiev’s famous score is featured on tonight’s “Great Performances” (8 p.m., PBS). Composed in 1936, “Peter and the Wolf” has been used for decades in music-education classes to teach children the use of music to tell stories and evoke distinct characters. In this tale, the brave and lonely Peter takes on a dangerous forest creature with the help of a loyal duck, a bird and a house cat. Animator Suzie Templeton set “Peter” not in the Russian forest of myth but a rather squalid version of contemporary post-Soviet society, where the city and the countryside collide in dingy chaos. Peter, the critters and Peter’s grandfather are remarkably not pretty. The puppet landscape includes thousands of tiny details, from a ramshackle cabin to an ancient Fiat surrendering slowly to rust. This gritty realism and the complete absence of dialogue provide “Peter” with an otherworldly atmosphere and surprising charms that viewers won’t soon forget. LANGUAGE OF THE FUTURE? Foreign students study the Mandarin Chinese language and culture at the National Taiwan Normal University in Taipei. People from all over the world are seeking to learn Chinese.

Education

The next generation of entrepreneurs is learning Chinese

When Marvin Ho co-founded a Chinese language school in Taiwan in 1957, his only students were a handful of Western missionaries.

Five decades later, it's a different story. Ho's classrooms are packed with people clamoring to learn what they believe is the next global tongue: Mandarin Chinese.

China, having traded socialism for capitalism, is emerging as an economic power, perhaps the only one that could rival U.S. dominance in the 21st century. For a new generation of students, business people and even artists, the land of opportunity now lies to the East, not the West.

Drawn to its promise, many are seeking ways to navigate the rough-and-tumble atmosphere of working in China. The clearest barometer of this trend is a booming appetite for learning Chinese.

Worldwide, about 40 million people are learning Mandarin, China's official spoken language and its most common dialect. Nearly 100,000 foreigners went to China to study Mandarin in 2006, more than twice the number of five years earlier.

"In my generation, the U.S. was the first choice," said Ho, whose Taipei Language Institute now boasts 2,400 students at 16 branches. This generation "thinks their future is in China. ... My friends encourage their children to go to China."

The rise of the Middle Kingdom has parallels with America in the last century, when it attracted people from around the world, said James McGregor, author of the book "One Billion Customers: Lessons From the Front Lines of Doing Business in China."

"This is a continental-sized economy being built from scratch," he said. McGregor, a former journalist who runs a business consulting firm in Beijing, advises those who want to head to China to bring an open mind, a sense of adventure and an appreciation for the absurd.

The other key to making it is solid language skills.

"If you're going to be an entrepreneur, you need to sink into the culture," he said. "Any 20-year-old American thinking of doing business in China one day and not thinking of learning Mandarin is not thinking."

America has been infected by China fever. At U.S. colleges, the number of students studying Mandarin jumped 51 percent between 2002 and 2006 to 51,600, according to a Modern Language Association survey. The increase is significant, although many more students — 800,000 — still study Spanish.

Mandarin's rise is a message that 26-year-old musician Skot Suyama from Seattle has taken to heart.

Suyama, whose boyish looks hint at his mixed heritage — half Swedish, half Japanese — has spent the last few years in Hong Kong and Taiwan, creating a mix of hip-hop, pop and grunge music. His skills are in demand because there are fewer people in the region trained in producing music than in the U.S.

With only rudimentary Chinese, he penned the lyrics for "Duibuqi, Xiexie" ("Sorry, Thank You") a few years ago, which became a big hit for Hong Kong pop singer Eason Chan in mainland China. However, Suyama has held off diving headlong into the Chinese music scene, in part because laws protecting music copyright and guaranteeing royalties are simply not enforced.

Plus, like many others, he's still learning Chinese. TINI TRAN (AP)

Playtime Unplugged

Leisure

Overstimulated kids can benefit from time without technology

Does your teen turn on the sarcasm when she's kicked off the computer? Is your grade-schooler asking for more quality time with the TV?

It could be your kids are over-programmed and overstimulated in these hectic, wired times, and your family could stand to be unplugged. Tossing the electronics, if only temporarily, provides your kids with something in short supply — your undivided attention.

So, nix the phone, shut down the computer and turn off the television for a “family slowdown.” It may be difficult to find the time, but it's worth it, said Susan Linn, author of the new book “The Case for Make Believe: Saving Play in a Commercialized World.”

“Remember that your child is going to be grappling with electronic media and the things it sells for the rest of their lives,” said Linn, a psychiatry instructor at Harvard Medical School.

“They’ll be better equipped to cope if they have lots of experience enjoying their own ability to make things happen, using their own curiosity as an impetus for actively exploring the world.”

Pamela Pensock, a working single mother of twin 12-year-old boys in Brooklyn, N.Y., couldn't agree more. She provided a virtually TV-free, computer-free life for her boys when they were younger and says she can see the benefits now that they're in sixth grade.

“They still play with action figures, interact on a creative level when their friends come over,” said Pensock, a freelance writer and editor. “I give my kids little talks about some of their peers, about, ‘Well, isn't it strange that all they can do is watch TV?’ Peer pressure is big in middle school, and we do have a TV now, but the funny thing is, they don't even watch it.”

On a recent rainy afternoon, my 8-year-old daughter and her twin friends from school made their own snack with an ice cream ball they filled up with ingredients and rolled around on the living room rug. There was measuring, mixing, pounding ice cubes with a hammer and plenty of physical activity for the three girls and the twins' 10-year-old brother.

“It was nice because we got to pass it around and shake it. Everybody got a turn. Then we got to eat it!” said my daughter, a third-grader.

Of course, there are times when even the most attentive parents are grateful to the creators of DVDs and video recorders. But quieter activities that kids can do mostly themselves with exhausted grown-ups nearby can replace electronic baby sitters.

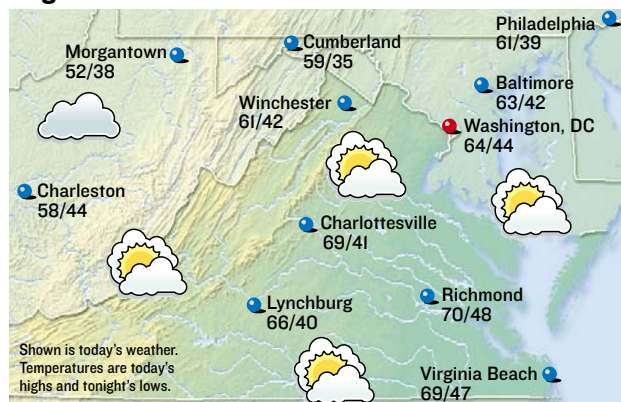

Dig into the desk for rubber bands and have them start a rubber band ball. Teach them old-fashioned hand string games, get them to think up a story and draw their own illustrations to go with it, pack travel puzzle books with enough variety to keep fresh on the road, or suggest origami that encourages kids to be inventive.

Whatever suits your family, Linn urges parents to start young. In good weather, a family hike in the woods or a walk around the neighborhood can clear everybody's heads and provide a quieter outdoor alternative to noisy and chaotic playgrounds. LEANNE ITALIE (AP)

Put a Lid On It

New Era taps into hat-wearing style and personality

FIND YOUR TRUE COLOR: A shopper looks at the selection at a New Era retail store in Buffalo, N.Y.

Hey, you — with the baseball cap.

That hat's saying a lot about you. Is the visor curled or flat? Does it sit straight on or backward, or is it cocked to the side? Does it bear a classic team logo or something less traditional, maybe a skull with wings?

You can bet they're paying attention at New Era Cap Co., the company that may have made that hat. And with a glance at your lid, they can tell who you are — including what you'll be wearing next.

The designers at New Era keep a close eye on the fashion trends from their little corner of New York. (No, not that corner. Further west, in Buffalo.)

There are 30 designers at New Era Cap Co.'s headquarters who are in constant touch with 15 colleagues in London and five in Irvine, Calif., to come up with new ways to keep the ubiquitous baseball cap fresh and in demand.

Yes, New Era supplies all the official on-field caps for Major League Baseball. But that's only part of the 35 million caps sold by this family-owned, 88-year-old company last year.

The huge design team launches about 500 new products each year over five fashion seasons: two for spring, two for fall and one for the holidays. That means countless color and pattern combinations, with fabrics including silk, cashmere, chifon, denim and snakeskin.

By far, the most popular style of cap is the 59Fifty, the fitted on-field cap worn by everyone from big leaguers to Spike Lee. Last year, 77 percent of New Era caps sold were 59Fiftys — which is a product number that dates to the 1930s.

The 59Fifty, which retails for $32, tends to be easy to spot. A lot of wearers leave the product sticker on the uncured brim. In more urban, fashion-forward circles, it's just not cool to remove it.

A more traditional guy might go for a stretch fit, peel the stickers off and get right to work curling the visor. (Spritz it with water, put a rubber band on it and stick it in a coffee cup.)

According to Gina Goss, New Era's women's product development manager, your choice in cap is a dead giveaway for the rest of your wardrobe.

"You can tell where they shop, what kind of car they drive, what kind of sneakers they wear," she said.

Try this: If you're wearing the 59Fifty, visor flat but backward, you may be an aspiring or pro skateboarder. Hot pink and glittery? You're probably a Texas girl.

If your cap is made from what looks like a comfy gray T-shirt, you're probably home in the Northeast. Does the pattern play to your Gucci handbag or Pucci scarf? You're probably a New York City or Toronto trendsetter who will be looking for something simpler next season.

As for team logos, the Yankees outsell three to one, but Boston's up-and-coming. CAROLYN THOMPSON (AP)

She's Still Got Sheen

It is fitting that, just as DENISE RICHARDS drops the surname "Sheen," we write about the lipstick, named after her daughter with said Sheen that she developed with Cargo. ANGIE HARMON and KIM RAVER also got to pick shades, and the result is three new eco-friendly PlantLove lipsticks. "Sam," by Denise, is a lustrous brickred, perhaps the hue Charlie's face turns when he thinks of Ms. Richards. Like previous PlantLoves, the boxes will sprout wildflowers if planted. HOLLY J. Food

Noshin' Nominations

When it comes to local chefs, any foodie will pretend he or she knows Jose Andres, above, and Michel Richard on a first-name basis. (Heck, foodies probably named their first-borns after 'em). So, it's not surprising that the recent JAMES BEARD AWARDS nominations (think Oscars of the culinary world) tagged Andres for Outstanding Chef (Minibar), Richard got a nod for Best New Restaurant (Central Michel Richard) and Johnny Monis is up for Rising Star Chef of the Year (Komi). Discussions

Nationals Park

Post transportation writers ERIC WEISS, LENA SUN and DR. GRIDLOCK were online Tuesday to talk about Nationals Park and the best way to get there.

City slickers are having no problem telling us country bumpkins our only option is “Take the Metro.” Don't the Nationals realize the majority of fans purposely don't live near a Metro station? Are there plans to expand parking options for those who aren't season-ticket holders and who aren't millionaires?

Ever been to Wrigley or Fenway? That's the experience baseball people want these days. The days of baseball parks surrounded by an island of parking in some suburb is over.

Will there be a taxi stand at Nationals Park? I'm sure a lot of people will get frustrated with the long lines on the Metro and will want to take a cab ride to, say, Metro Center, etc. Have the Nats considered running buses to other points besides RFK, i.e. other Metro stations?

The taxi stand will be on the east side of Half Street, between M and K streets SE. Remember, though, that your taxi will pull out onto the same streets the other motoring fans are trying to use around the stadium.

Is there not a handicapped shuttle from RFK? Looks like any other solution equates to five blocks of walking.

Some of the Nats Express free shuttles from RFK's Lot 8 will be handicapped accessible, but not all of them. And they all go to the same drop-off point, at 300 M St. SE, across from the U.S. DOT offices. I believe we do not yet have an ideal solution on handicapped access.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is no time for houseguests; you want to feel as though you can turn to your own home for escape and solitude. Plans may have to change.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll enjoy a little more freedom than expected. Take the opportunity to explore some private interests with more attention.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What begins as a mild flirtation must always be kept under control, or you're likely to find yourself in over your head before long.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will very likely be racing against the clock before the day is out, and be sure that you are neither hesitant nor careless.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Are you ready for a challenge? You can be sure that before this day is out you'll be facing something that demands the best from you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Assume a casual air, even though you are pressed by a problem that simply won't go away.

In time, you'll see just what you have to do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be specific in your requests and you'll likely receive much, if not all, of what you have asked for before the day is out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Speed is important, but so is accuracy. You don't want to head toward your goal so quickly that you end up missing the mark in the end.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) That which appears most threatening is likely to be a product of your own fears and insecurities at this time. Get away from old notions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A good way for you to re-establish proper focus at this time is to turn your attention to something else for the time being.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) There is no real reason to feel threatened by anyone or anything. You are in a fine position to view the landscape with ease.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) This is a good day to try to combine travel plans with career maneuvering. Set up meetings, if you can, with those who can give you a boost.

NATIONALS PARK INAUGURAL SEASON

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Some said this day would never come. It may be hard to remember now, but few issues divided the city as fiercely as the fight to build a new ballpark for the Washington Nationals. Yet there it stands, completed — a symbol of long-sought redevelopment along the Anacostia River.

As new businesses pop up in Southwest D.C., the Nationals are set to continue their own rebuilding project, aiming to field a winning team inside their new, state-of-the-art facility. The city and team hope to grow together, with the success of both tied to the stadium. The journey begins Sunday.

GETTING THERE

Nats Express

For those who insist on driving to the ballpark, the Washington Nationals will be offering a free round-trip shuttle from RFK Stadium to Nationals Park. Parking at RFK is free, and 50 luxury motor coaches will operate continuously from an hour and a half before game time through an hour and a half after the last inning. In theory, this could be a solid system for mitigating the ballpark's current parking problems. In practice, however, if 20,000 people choose to take advantage of the RFK parking lot, dealing with crowded shuttle buses could turn into a logistical nightmare, particularly with children. But, from the standpoint of fans, these bus rides could definitely enhance the group experience.

BIKERS WELCOME

Nationals Park will be biker-friendly, according to the team. There are more than 250 bike racks around the stadium. Also, riders can take advantage of Nationals Park's free bike valet, located in Red Garage C on N & 1st Streets SE. Access to the valet is on N Street just left of the entrance. The valet will be accepting bikes two hours before game time and will close one hour after the last inning.

Driver's Remorse

With just 5,000 spaces, parking at Nationals Park will be a nightmare. We have the best ways to get to the game on time.

METRO: RED LINE

THEY SAY: Take the Red Line to Union Station, where you have your choice of two options. A walk south down 1st Street to New Jersey Avenue will guide you straight to the ballpark. Also, Metrobus has ramped up service on the N22 line, which runs between Union Station and the Navy Yard station.

WE SAY: This is a good option, although taking a bus from Columbus Circle to the Navy Yard might not be any faster than a 25-minute walk during rush hour.

METRO: GREEN/YELLOW LINE

THEY SAY: You can head directly to the Navy Yard station, which is a two-minute walk from Nationals Park. The station will feature expanded turnstiles and will be exit-only at the Half Street exit before games and entrance-only after games.

WE SAY: Plan to get there early. The construction at the Navy Yard station could turn every game day into a debacle for fans new to the process. Walking from Waterfront-SEU is not a bad way to go, either.

METRO: ORANGE/BLE LINE

THEY SAY: Take the train to Capitol South and walk 15 minutes down 1st Street to New Jersey Avenue toward the stadium.

WE SAY: If you aren't crunched for time, consider walking from Eastern Market or Potomac Avenue. It's a longer trip, but through a seemingly safer neighborhood. The 8th Street/Barracks Row entertainment options provide a nice pregame atmosphere during the walk.

DRIVING

THEY SAY: Take Metro. End of story.

WE SAY: Amen. Sort of. The D.C. Department of Transportation has issued parking restrictions for areas surrounding the ballpark and extending as far north as Independence Avenue. If you're considering a walk from any of the Orange or Blue line stations, parking near them and walking might be equally effective. Or you could take a chance on "bargaining" with an enterprising resident for a Zone 6 pass, allowing you to park in the restricted zone. CLINTON YATES (EXPRESS)

CONCESSIONS

Buy Me Fish Tacos and Chili Mac

Today's ballpark features a little more variety than what old-timers are used to – oh, and it's local, too.

Ben's famous half-smoke will now be available all over Nationals Park.

When the Nats take on the Braves on March 30, it won't be the only tense face-off in the stadium. Ben's Chili Bowl will go head to head (or is it chili dog to chili dog?) with Hard Times Cafe, as both local enterprises compete to bust your gut on game day. "I, personally, think Hard Times Cafe runs circles around Ben's Chili Bowl, with all due respect," says Hard Times director of marketing Doug Welsh. Oh, yeah? "Bring it on," says Ben's co-owner Nizam Ali. "I'm all for it." Ah, nothing like a friendly competition to get the stomach churning. But Ben's and Hard Times won't be the only local vendors competing for your dollars on game day. Fish tacos and smoothies now supplement the traditional ballpark fare. Here's a look at what the local vendors will provide.

KRIS CORONADO (EXPRESS)

1 Ben's Chili Bowl (U Street)

Chili turkey dogs, chili cheese fries, chili cheeseburgers, half-smokes and, of course, chili (regular and veggie) will be offered at the Ben's stand on the third base side. "A lot of people have asked us to go to different places," says Ali. "This is not a small move for us. ... How do you duplicate history?" The atmosphere may be a little different than at the 50-year-old D.C. staple, but the chili cheese half-smokes will be the same. And those (but not the other chili products) will be available at 12 carts throughout the stadium.

2 Boardwalk Fries (Ocean City, Md.)

All the staples — chicken tenders, fries, beer, soda and peanuts — will be available at the stand in left-center field. "Ours are fresh-cut fries," says co-owner Fran DiFerdinando. "We're cutting potatoes right there. It's not a frozen product."

Hometown Helpings

Maybe it's because Stan Kasten is not from around here — or maybe the man who's traveled around to baseball stadiums for so long just gets it. But either way, the team has figured out that, in this transient city, there are going to be people who — gasp! — didn't grow up on Ben's. For them, the Nats will rotate through some traditional favorites: Cuban sandwiches when the Marlins are in town, Texas brisket for Astros fans, fried ravioli for the visiting St. Louis Cardinals and California sushi rolls for the L.A. Dodgers faithful, just to name a few.

3 Cantina Marina (Southwest D.C.)

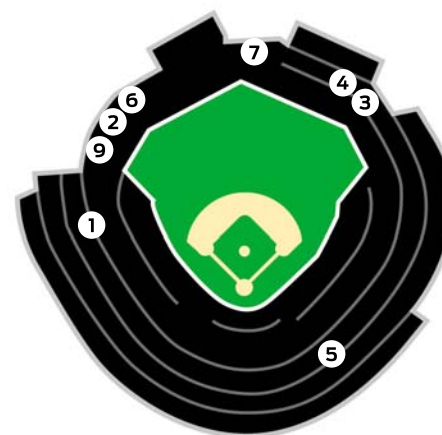

Cantina Marina will switch it up: Fish and shrimp tacos, and muffaletta in summer; gumbo during the chilly months. "The signature item is going to be a blackened crab-cake sandwich," says managing partner Richard Hemmer. "We're also doing a Cajun corn dog — which is a corn dog with a little of our spice on it." The restaurant is a short walk from the stadium. The food, though, will be in the club level of right-center field.

4 Five Guys (Alexandria, Va.)

When it comes to ordering from the successful local franchise, go big or go back to the bleachers. Single patties are not an option here, says director of communications Molly Catalano. "We have the regular hamburger, cheeseburger, bacon burger, bacon cheeseburger," she says. And "regular" means two helpings of beef with a choice of 15 toppings. Fries will be served in one size, and hot dogs will be offered in cheese and bacon dog variations. If the smell of sizzling beef doesn't give away their location, look for 'em next to Cantina Marina in right-center field.

5 Gifford's Ice Cream (Silver Spring, Md.)

The stadium's sweet spot will be this mini-ice cream parlor stationed between home and first. Twelve flavors of ice cream — from Swiss chocolate to peppermint stick — will be served in cones and cups. Milk shakes and caramels are also available. Try a novelty ice cream sandwich called "The Dinger," says co-owner Neal Lieberman. The grand slam will be sundaes served in red souvenir Nats helmets. "We're not sure if we'll have them on Opening Day," Lieberman says, "but we will have them." Suh-weet!

MARGE ELY/EXPRESS

Locations for Mayorga Coffee (four carts throughout stadium) not shown.

6 Hard Times Cafe (Alexandria, Va.)

Look for all of the old favorites at Hard Times, which will provide chili dogs, nachos, wings, chili mac and Frito chili pie. "We're the old reliable," says Doug Welsh, whose stand will be in the left-center field food court. "We have a lot of loyal customers who are very happy to see us in venues like this."

7 Krazee Ice (Clinton, Md.)

In the center-field plaza, fans can find 31 flavors of New Orleans-style shaved ice — perfect for cooling off on those particularly hot D.C. summer days.

8 Mayorga Coffee (Rockville, Silver Spring, Md.)

There's beer and soda, water and lemonade, and then there's Mayorga, featuring lattes, cappuccinos, coffees, organic iced teas and smoothies (one flavor will be mango). "It's unique to have a hand-crafted latte at a park," says owner Martin Mayorga. "Our people will be coming out into the stands with iced tea and smoothies — those will be served right out of a jet pack. It will be cool and innovative." They will have four carts located at the suite level behind home plate, the first-base side club level, and the first- and third-base sides on the main level.

9 Noah's Pretzels (Gaithersburg, Md.)

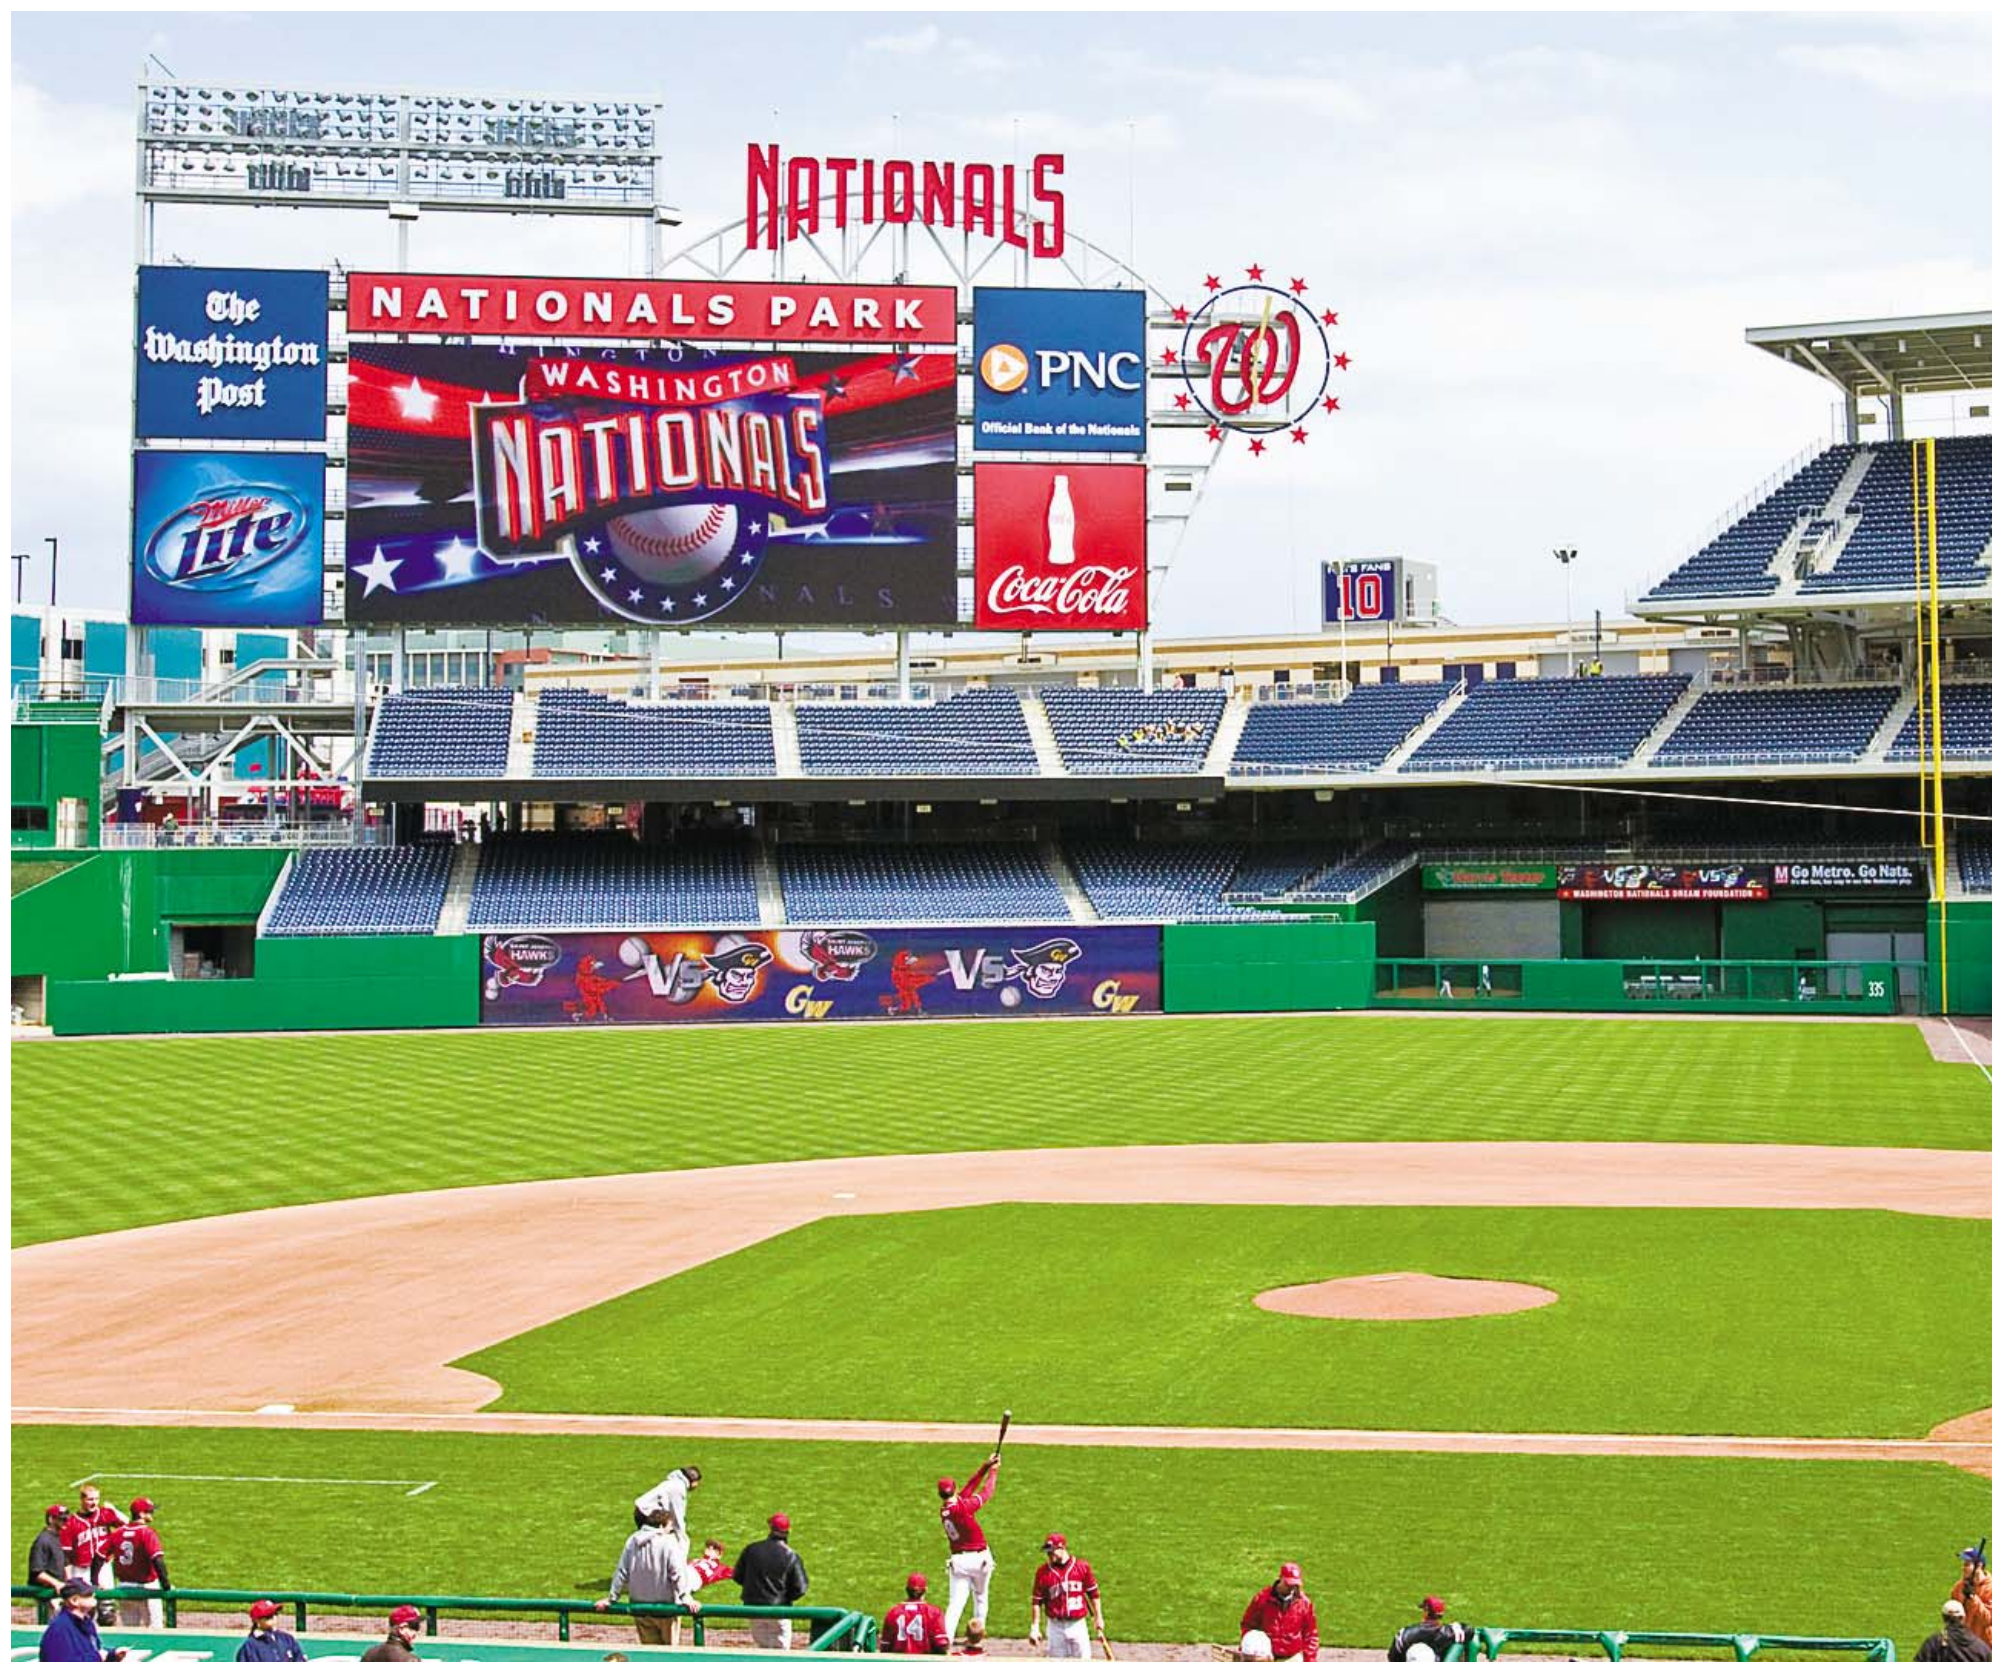

Salt, plain, cinnamon and gluten and casein-free are all options. Pretzels not shaped in a Nationals' "W" are not. "I went on a Web site, saw the team logo and started playing with it," says owner Dwayne Herndon of the distinct shape. Herndon's 8-year-old son Noah — for which the business is named — has autism, and 10 percent of proceeds from the stand in the left-center field food court will benefit autism awareness.

Seeing Red in Center Field

Beer belching and rowdy fans typically come to mind when you think of center field seats. Not so for the Nats. A $65 ticket lands your rump in a cushy seat with complimentary in-seat service. You also get a $20 credit toward food and booze that can be cashed in at the nearby Red Porch Restaurant and Red Loft Bar.

STADIUM SIGHTS

Scoreboard Watching

Measuring 4,811 square feet, the video board is the park's crown jewel.

PHOTOS BY LAWRENCE LUK

While not the largest in baseball (Atlanta and Arizona both have slightly more-gigormous boards), the 102-by-47 foot screen is certainly in the ballpark of MLB's biggest and best. With state-of-the-art video and audio equipment behind the huge screen, the Nationals see the center-field centerpiece as the key ingredient to an in-game experience — it will provide instant replays of the game's action and graphics throughout each contest. The out-of-town scoreboard sits directly below the board in right-center field, and LED boards line the stadium with scores and stats from the day's MLB action. MATT SWENSON (EXPRESS)

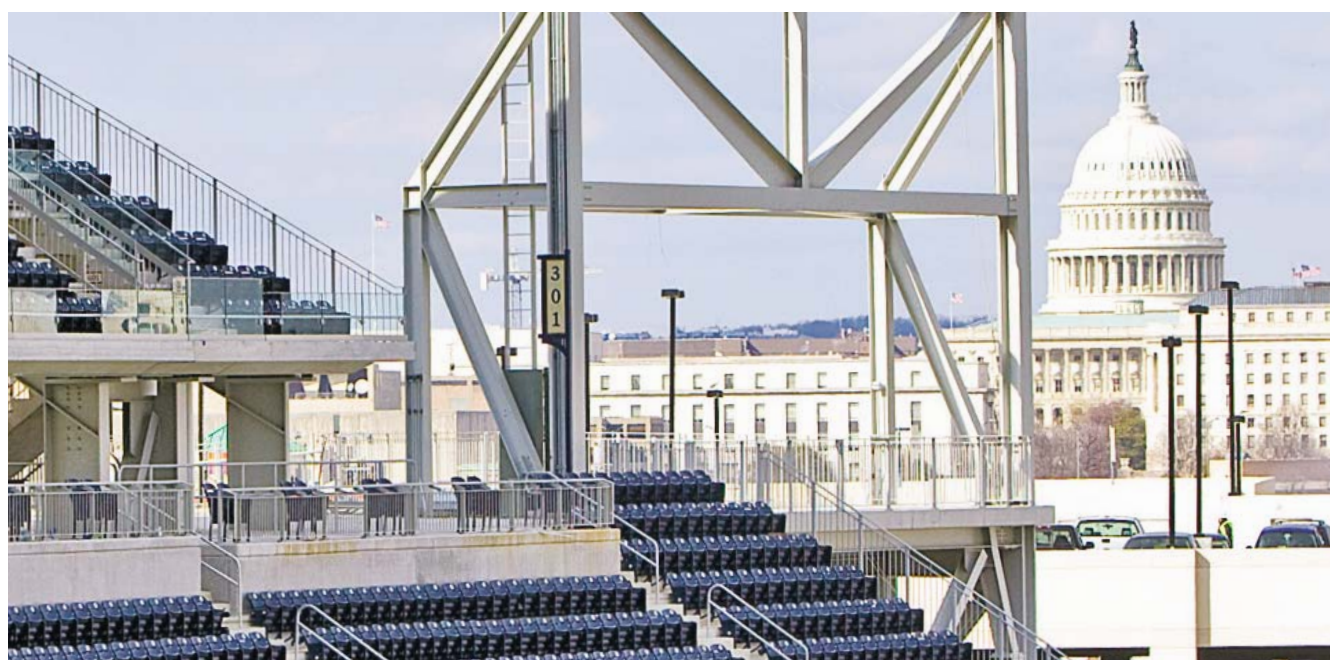

STADIUM SIGHTS

A view of the center-field entrance, top right, which will feature cherry trees and a kids area, including a batter's cage, pitcher's cage, jungle gym and Sony PlayStation Pavilion. The Nationals "10th Man" can also gaze at the Anacostia River and the Capitol, but the dome is visible only from limited seats, and development may eventually block it even more.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Hardball Hangouts

Sometimes the fun begins before the first pitch and ends well after the last out

Although the neighborhood directly around Nationals Park isn't quite Wrigleyville yet, the surrounding area provides quite a few food and drink options within a reasonable walk. We highlight some hangouts, including some on Capitol Hill and in the vibrant 8th Street corridor, to consider if you're looking for something to do before or after a ballgame.

5 TRUSTY'S

An intimate neighborhood bar near RFK Stadium, Trusty's has been a favored haunt of D.C. United and Nationals supporters for some time. Although small, the menu offers a range of items off the grill; cheesesteaks, brats and burgers are the most popular, and chili and veggie burgers are also available. The bar's cozy vibe and the vast array of board games lends itself well to small groups looking to have fun.

10 TORTILLA COAST

Known as the Tex-Mex spot on Capitol Hill, this sizeable restaurant across the street from the Capitol South Metro station will likely be a popular destination for large groups going to and coming from Nationals Park. Located around the corner from the Library of Congress, you might even catch a glimpse of a politician or two while dining. Although considered famous for fajitas and margaritas, sandwiches and a kids menu are also available.
